

Tenant Tales: Meet Katie

After years of renting, Katie was starting to wonder why continued to pay for tenant insurance. Nothing had ever happened to her, so why waste money on something she may never need?

That all changed in July 2018.

A fire in her neighbour's unit had caused smoke and water damage to her apartment, leaving virtually all of her things damaged beyond repair. She was instructed to leave the premises as the fire team worked to clean out the building, and would not be allowed to return for almost 2 months.

“Thankfully, contents coverage and additional living expenses were covered under my insurance plan, as well as some additional unexpected expenses caused by the fire. The hotel bill for 2 months was $10,000. Who can pay that while still paying rent?”

At the end of the day, the bill alone was more than I paid for 10 years of insurance protection.”
